The Kern River . . .

The headwaters of the Kern River, the portion which constitutes the "last frontier" for fishermen and nature lovers, is reached by trail over Whitney Pass, or by one of the southerly passes; namely, Army Pass, Mulkey Pass, or Cottonwood Pass. In this huge drainage basin are found every variety of trout, at altitudes ranging from 6500 to 12,800 feet.

Whether a person fishes a stream or whips a fly in a lake, is all a matter of choice. There are many scenic attractions in this, the high country of Sequoia National Park. The "Grand Canyon" of the Kern is one of the seldom heard of wonders of the west, with towering cliffs reaching a maximum height of 3000 feet, fencing the Kern for thirty miles. Chagoopa Falls, Big Arroyo, Golden Trout Falls, the Post Pile, Natural Bridge, are some of the attractions associated with this wilderness region.

Easy to Reach . . .

It is easy to reach Chrysler and Cook pack stations, located near Lone Pine, California. The new, high-speed, all-paved highway, U. S. 395, brings one from Los Angeles on the south or Reno from the north to Lone Pine in only a few hours of easy driving along a scenic thoroughfare. This route is known as the Three Flags highway and is open the year-round.

Chrysler and Cook Pack Trips to the Top of Mt. Whitney

ONE, TWO, THREE OR FOUR DAYS ■ LONGER TRIPS IF DESIRED

Mt. Whitney, highest in the United States, and ultimate goal of all mountain lovers, is now easily accessible over by far the shortest and most scenic route of any trail leading to the summit of this famous peak.

■

The trail starts at our Hunters Flat pack station, located 14 miles west of Lone Pine, at the end of the new auto road. Trail zig-zags up the mountain with Lone Pine creek cascading over a series of falls to the left. An hour's ride brings us to a beautiful alpine lake, the home of several species of trout. Another 20 minute's ride and we arrive at Mt. Whitney Outpost Camp, located at 10,300 feet, just below timber line, in the wondrous setting of towering cliffs and green meadows of Ibex Park. Here those on the more leisurely two and three day trip, as well as those wishing to take advantage of the excellent fishing in the near-by lakes and streams, are served delicious mountain cooked meals and furnished with clean, comfortable beds during their stay.

■

The trip is resumed, passing Mirror lake, and a short distance beyond, the last, stunted tree of timber line. Here we enter a world of mighty granite walls and boulder strewn basins, with beautiful Consultation lake to our left. In this wilderness of stone, some of the lovliest of the high country wild flowers grow. Again the trail zig-zags sharply upward, passing thru fields of everlasting snow. Directly over our heads the wild crags of Muir and the Whitney pinnacles are silhouetted against the dark blue of the sky. Suddenly the fore-ground drops away—Whitney pass—and we sit our horses on the back bone of the Sierra. Mountains, peaks, as far as the eye can reach. Below us the grand canyon of the Kern—beyond, the ramparts of the Kaweahs and Great Western Divide.

■

A short distance beyond the pass, the trail forks, one branch dropping down the west side to Crabtree meadows, south to Rock creek and via Army pass and Cottonwood lakes to our Carrol creek pack station. Or from Crabtree, those out for a week or longer, may drop down into the Kern, south to Golden trout creek and out to Carrol creek, or west to Giant Forest—or even far north to Yosemite and beyond. All of this back country is a veritable seventh heaven for the fisherman.

■

The other fork of the trail continues upward, clinging to the steep side of the mountain—from time to time crossing the bottoms of giant notches in the main ridge, enabling us to get startling glimpses of the Owens valley and the mountains beyond. At last the very summit. The majesty of the view almost takes your breath away—peaks, lakes, streams and timber—all unspoiled, virgin wilderness. To the east Owens valley, with far beyond, the blue desert ranges of Nevada—southeast, Death valley, with the Panamint and Funeral ranges—while directly below us, two thousand feet straight down, is a beautiful little lake with an iceberg in the center. - - - - This trip, you'll always remember.

INDEPENDENT-PROGRESS PRESS ◆ INDEPENDENCE, CALIF.

THE HIGH SIERRA OF LONE PINE DISTRICT - -

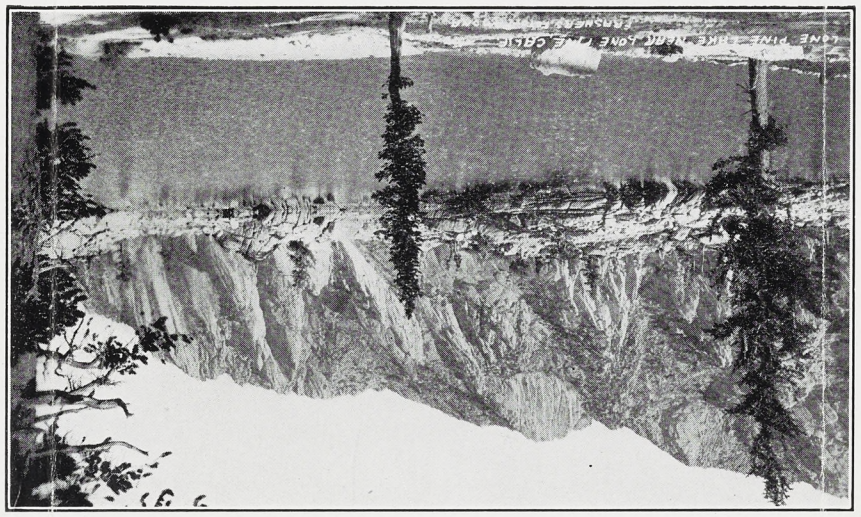
Lofty peaks, deep canyons, virgin forests, crystal-clear lakes and streams, offer one of the most beautiful and easily accessible regions in the whole mighty Sierra-Nevada range. The country abounds in Golden trout, the "beauty fish" of the high country, one of the gamiest fish known. It is a species distinct in itself and is native to this country.

PLAN TO VACATION
IN THE HIGH SIERRA - -

There must be a reason why more than a quarter million people annually vacation in the High Sierra. It is an ideal country in which to rest or to enjoy the beauties of California's most majestic scenic district. After a taste of its delights, you are beckoned to return again and often. To the sportsman, the High Sierra needs no introduction.



AIRPLANE SERVICE

To the highest Airport in the northern hemisphere

THROUGH cooperation, Sierra Airways offers those of our patrons who wish to save time, fast transportation by air, thirty minutes from Lone Pine to our new camp, located in the heart of the Sierra at Tunnel landing field. Tunnel field is the highest airport in the northern hemisphere—elevation, 9,200 feet.

Here we furnish good meals and comfortable sleeping accommodations. There are also available saddle horses, pack animals and a guide service for those wishing to visit Rocky Basin lakes, Rock creek, Kern River, Golden Trout creek and numerous other points of interest—all easily reached within a short horse back ride from this centrally located camp.

Excellent stream fishing for golden trout may be had a short distance from camp and a comfortable horseback ride takes you to some of the best lake and stream fishing in the West. Beautiful scenery predominates and, in season, the deer hunter will find this to be a well chosen spot.

CARROL CREEK PACK STATION

Located 10 miles southwest of Lone Pine

HERE One of our large pack outfits is stationed, ready at all times to transport you over safe, scenic trails into the heart of this great country of recreation and relaxation.

Carrol creek is the ideal starting point for fishing and hunting trips into the back country.

—Golden Trout Camp—

A short ride of 3 and one-half hours takes you to Golden Trout Camp, located on Cottonwood creek at an elevation of 10,000 feet. Excellent meals and comfortable beds are furnished at reasonable prices here, as well as fully equipped housekeeping cabins for those who prefer them.

Two miles above Golden Trout Camp are the 10 Cottonwood lakes, noted for their excellent Golden trout fishing.

—Over Army Pass—

From here the trail continues over Army Pass and down the west slope to Rock creek lakes. From Rock creek lakes the trail winds down Rock creek, taking you in and out of deep, luxuriant meadows, dotted with innumerable wild flowers, and thru the cool fragrancy of stately pine forests. The trail hugs the creek and from his saddle the vacationist may observe the glistening bodies of the sturdy Golden trout swimming about in the pools.

About four miles from the lakes, down Rock creek, the trail branches or forks. One trail goes to Mt. Whitney and then joins the famous Muir trails, leading to the headwaters of the Kern and on to Yosemite. The other trail, turning south, leads over Siberian pass into the Golden Trout creek and the Kern River country.

—Over Mulkey Pass—

Lone Pine area of the High Sierra is also a favored hunting ground. For the deer hunter there are Red Rock and Cold Meadows, Mulkey, Ramshow and Potholes areas, and Little Whitney and Templeton Meadows. All of these districts are well populated with Black Tail deer. In addition, several other nearby areas are well known to hunters. Bear are numerous in the late fall.

The trail over Mulkey pass is the shortest, most direct route which may be taken to reach this famous hunting area, altho it may also be reached over Cottonwood pass.
